

Day turned night as time turned back.
Gray turned bright and white turned black.
Nothing moving moved the same.
Everything coming never came.
Nothing resting ever rests.
Everything leaving never left.

Things barely dreaming finally woke up.
Things barely speaking finally spoke up.
The falling fell up and never came down.
The rising rose up but never left ground.

neil miller ©2022